Apave, the leading international group in the field of technical, human, environmental and digital risk management, has won the Preventica 2022 Innovation Award for its digital solution for assessing occupational risks and drawing up single documents: PILOT Health and Safety.

This prize was awarded on Tuesday 28/09/2022 to Apave and its partner Ayming, during the Preventica Lyon trade fair, the leading trade fair for health and safety at work. This trophy is awarded each year for the most innovative solution for risk prevention.

This is a new award for the Apave Group, which had already won the Innovation Award in 2019 for its collaborative digital solution for reporting dangerous situations in the field, ALERT Santé Sécurité, which is now used by more than 5000 users.

PILOT Health & Safety: the innovative response to the risk prevention challenges facing VSEs/SMEs

Risk assessment in companies and the development of an active health and safety prevention policy are key issues for companies and have been placed at the heart of the occupational health reform that will come into force in spring 2022.

PILOT Health & Safety is an innovative digital solution, unique on the market, which identifies the risk factors associated with each activity and easily manages an action plan, thanks to simple and highly visual indicators. The Apave Group and the Ayming Group, which specialises in business and performance consulting, have thus combined their mutual expertise to develop a turnkey approach that meets the needs of VSEs/SMEs, at an attractive price.

Thanks to PILOT Health & Safety, a VSE/SME manager benefits from :

- Apave's expertise in risk assessment and the preparation of the single document.
- Dynamic management of their health and safety issues, with a dedicated interface that allows them to measure their compliance in real time and monitor the implementation of appropriate action plans.

"Our common objective is to provide a pragmatic and highly operational response to the managers of VSEs/SMEs to help them better identify and prevent occupational risks," says Laurent Kadour, Sales and Marketing Director of Apave Group. "We are convinced that risk prevention is not just a matter for specialists. It is essential to facilitate the implementation of simple prevention procedures, in particular by simplifying the preparation of key documents such as the single risk assessment document or the declaration and analysis of work-related accident." adds Julien Pierrepont, Sales and Marketing Director of Ayming Group.

PILOT Health and Safety is part of the range of digital solutions developed by the Apave Group to support its customers - managers or HSE officers - in managing Health and Safety at work on a daily basis and over time.

This award illustrates and confirms the Apave Group's desire to develop more innovative tools to serve its customers and the safety of all.
